This large refurbished village house is built over 4 levels and has the advantage of having access from two streets. At street level one enters into an attractively tiled "San Juan" entrance porch which leads through to a spacious lounge/dining room leading through to a spacious kitchen with dining room off. Off of the kitchen is a spacious laundry room through which one can access an expansive terrace which hosts views over the Andalucian countryside. A full sized bathroom and a room which is currently used as an office but which equally could be used as a bedroom completes the accommodation at this level. An attractive staircase leads to the first floor which hosts 3 double bedrooms one of which has an adjoining room which could be exploited as a dressing room or nursery through which one gains access to a further terrace. A family bathroom completes the accommodation on this level. In addition to the main accommodation described above, this property also enjoys some further accommodation at lower street level which is accessed by an internal staircase but which also has independent access from the parallel street. At this level there is a large L-shaped room plus a further room currently used as a games room plus 2 store rooms. There is a further terrace off the games room with room for a plunge pool. From this level a staircase leads down to the private garage which has access from the street. This property enjoys a good location on the edge of Alora pueblo and because of its distribution and the fact that enjoys access from two streets, it offers great flexibility of accommodation. The property is offered in a good state of maintenance and is connected to all mains services.
