A staircase leads to the upper level which offers 3 further double bedrooms, one of which enjoys direct access to a spacious terrace hosting views across the Andalusian countryside. The house is being sold with 846m² of land which hosts a carport and a small paddock and stables. The property benefits from holding a licence which grants the owner the right to keep up to 5 horses. This property offers an interesting compromise between town and country living. The location is rural, approx. 12km from Álora pueblo, with the final 4kms of access by dry riverbed track, however, it does have close neighbours, being attached to neighbouring properties. Mains electricity is connected and water is supplied by a private well. Ideal rural retreat with added advantage of equestrian licence.
